A film by Marshall Lewy

The New York Times

NY TIMES CRITICS' PICK!

"A wry, mournful study of midlife crisis... shaded and unpredictable. Lewy neatly sidesteps the fissure of redemption."
-Jeannette Catsoulis

"Carlyle beautifully weaves together all of the character's multitudes...A fascinating profile of a man"
-Thomas Hachard

"Carlyle is wonderfully transparent and natural... There's a lovely gravity and specificity to the story."
-Lisa Schwarzbaum

"A contemplative human drama with a powerful message...that it's never too late to fix things"
- Robert Levin

"A disarming and involving character study...No one has written a part for [Carlyle] that gives him the chance to show his range the way Lewy has. Make the effort to find it; you won't be sorry."
-Marshall Fine

"Carlyle's soulful, layered performance as an embittered musician facing his demons gives this fragile drama emotional heft."

"An unexpected gem...features a stunning central performance."

"Treats its themes with delicate tact and a precise eye. A side of Southern California rarely seen in movies. Strong supporting cast...finely observed."
